

Wetland Natural Area

Wetland natural areas serve as stormwater basins that slow, cool and clean water, while also including a variety of grasses, sedges, forbs and native perennial plants.

These areas are also home to various species, such as birds, mammals and insects.

Wetland areas are not generally irrigated after initial establishment. They perform best when not mowed, allowing grasses to seed and fill in as needed.

(your logo here)

Helping create waterwise, Colorado-friendly landscapes and educating the public about their many benefits.

Learn more at www.northernwater.org